The half-timbered house was built in the 15th century, under Count Simon V, and served originally as a granary. Because of its dilapidation, it was restored from its original site in Schieder (a town in the Lippe district) in 1955 and reconstructed until 1958 where it is still today and houses the collections of the museum.

In addition to certificates of church history in Lippe and portraits of historically significant Lippe residents, the extensive collection includes a large art collection with works from the Renaissance to the present day. There are also typical period rooms of wealthy citizens and nobles, historical toys as well as various weapons, and products of urban craftsmanship.

Within reach: This history of Lippe from the ice and stone age, bronze and iron, through the Roman empire to the middle ages. Not only the unique exhibits, but also exciting interactive activities guarantee an enjoyable experience for young and old alike.

In the 15th century, the people from Lippe went out into the world. People’s interest in art grew and today’s artists were awakened: they went on trips and brought the world to Lippe. This is how scribes, handworkers and engravers from Donaus, Asia and Africa came here.

Numerous fossils, impressive antiques of the neolithic age and bones of the cave bear provide an insight to historical landscapes.

The Laurin relief, found during archaeological excavations in the Teutoburg forest is continuously being developed in cooperation with OWL. Examples of almost all coins minted in Lippe from the 13th to the 19th century can be discovered in the coin cabinet. The collection focuses on the development of the art styles of the late medieval era.
